Which sports did you play as a child?

I played base ball, basketball, football, volleyball and cross country through out child hood.

Which sports do you enjoy watching?

I rarely watch sports on the television, but if I am, it is usually volleyball that I am watching

Do you play any musical instruments?

No

Getting flown to school in a helicopter in the 6th grade.

Going with my best friends on an all-inclusive trip to Mexico for a week.

I am extremely hard working. I love to problem solve. I love to be social and meet new people I can connect with.

Describe a few of your weak sides:

I have a low patience for explaining myself multiple times. I like to get things done a bit too quick. And I'm not the best listener, when I should listen.

Donor Essay

Why do you want to be a donor?

I want to be able to help people. I am at a point in my life where I don't really want my own children, and want to focus on being the best uncle I can be, when that day comes. And since I am healthy, and have good genes, why not share it with families who desperately want to have their own children, but can't do it naturally, or a single woman who so desperately wants to be a mom.

Describe your relationship with your family. How has your family shaped your values and who you are today?

I am extremely close with my family, both extended and immediate. I have a pretty big extended family, so being able to see them, grow up with them, it has shaped my views in politics, and just in life. I am able to pick and choose the things that I like and dislike, and know that I have the full support from them all, should a decision be made. I have been blessed in the fact that I grew up in a household who believes you should think how you want to think, and make your own decisions and beliefs with out judgement.

What makes you unique?

That I have a great personality, and am able to connect with people fairly easily. I am able to make people feel comfortable to talk to and ask for advice, but also want to hang out with. I am a very lively person, and the life of the party.

What are you most proud of any why?

I am most proud of the relationship that I have built with my family. It's extremely important as a young adult to know that your family has your back, and you are willing to share the good, the bad and the ugly with, hoping to get constructive criticism, so you're able to learn. Now days, it's very rare to know people who are actually close with their whole family, and I am very proud I have that.

Briscoe Staff Impression

Briscoe has a classic and effortlessly handsome look. His hair's short and playfully messy on top, and his skin has a smooth, medium-warm tone with a faint scattering of freckles across the apples of his cheeks. His features are cleanly defined, with a square jaw and a strong chin, paired with a straight, proportional nose and full lips. His blue-green eyes stand out most, catching the light with radiant sparkle. Tall and broad-shouldered, with an athlete's build, he's strong and capable without being imposing.

Whether hiking, staying competitive in volleyball, or spending summer days wakeboarding and waterskiing, Briscoe is always on the move. Athletics have always been part of his life, and he continues to stay physically engaged and challenged. He has a creative side, too. Raised in a family of painters, he developed an appreciation for art early on and has enough skill of his own to back it up, once earning recognition in a school art show for a detailed piece. It's a quieter contrast to his athletic energy, but one that balances him out. He's social and easy to be around. He enjoys the energy of being out at concerts, sporting events, and spending time with friends, but is just as comfortable dialing things back and relaxing at home. He's good with numbers, mechanically inclined, and the kind of person who reads the instructions before putting something together. Combining a practical, problem-solving mindset with an ability to learn hands-on when needed, he has versatility, skill, and adaptability in any situation. He works in sales, with a focus on medical devices and software, and he's drawn to roles where he's helping someone. That same thinking is what brought him to donate; he wants to help people in a way that really matters.
